

Ending the Cycle of Domestic Violence

If ever I looked back at my life and wished I could go back and change something, that was so devastating to me, it would have been all the precious years that I had allowed or as I say enabled someone to abuse me and my children, But as we all know, we cannot go back into the past and change anything. But we can change the way we live our lives and make a difference to others that are otherwise living the same life we did. Then maybe they can change the way they live their lives, and become free of abuse and conflict. As it seems as if there is more tolerance and in many ways, almost an acceptance of abuse through; culture, religion and even music. This is a sad way that we are raising our youth. But if we can get to these future enablers and predators, before they get caught up in this false world, then maybe we can change the direction of their future and even save the lives of innocent victims and the enabling adults. Just say STOP.
