

Ed Galloways Totem Pole Park: The Story Behind One of the Greatest Folk-Art Attractions on Americas Mother Road, Route 66

ED GALLOWAYS TOTEM POLE PARK

For nearly 70 years, Nathan Edward Galloways one-of-a-kind creation has towered over a rural stretch of state highway just off Route 66 in northeastern Oklahoma, attracting people from near and far. Billed as the worlds largest man-made totem pole, the 90-foot-tall, meticulously crafted concrete structure as well as the park that surrounds it was, unbelievably, a one-man project. Ed Galloways Totem Pole Park is a book about this extraordinary man, who built his totem pole and the surrounding park after retiring from a life that had seen him go from a hardscrabble farm in rural Missouri to a now almost-forgotten war in the Philippine Islands, and from there to Sand Springs, Oklahoma, where he distinguished himself for many years as a manual-training instructor and father figure to the orphaned boys at oilman Charles Pages famous Sand Springs Home. A soldier, artist, teacher, sculptor, and visionary, Ed Galloway was a man as fascinating as the park that bears his name, which continues to draw tourists and Mother Road explorers from all over the globe. Ed Galloways Totem Pole Park is for those travelers, as well as for armchair adventurers seeking a fascinating and unusual true-life tale of a man who brought his singular artistic vision to unforgettable life.
