These selected paragraphs distill the contents and give you a quick look inside Double Harness: Look inside the book: Hell always be a capital fellow; but, alas, he wont long be the jewel he is now: just at that stage between boy and man-hobbledehoy, as you women used to make me so furious by calling me-breathing fury against all institutions, especially those commonly supposed to be of divine origin; learned in ten thousand books; knowing naught of all that falls under the categories of men, women, and things; best of all, blindly wrath at himself because he has become, or is becoming, a man, and cant help it, and cant help feeling it! ...He wont so much mind my being old and stout, and he wont think so much of the time when I was young and he couldnt be with me; and hell find me easier to live with: my tempers improved a lot these last years, Sibylla. About Anthony Hope, the Author: Hope was born in Clapton, then on the edge of London, where his father, the Reverend Edward Connerford Hawkins, was headmaster of St Johns Foundational School for the Sons of Poor Clergy (which soon moved to Leatherhead in Surrey and is now St Johns School). ...3 He went on a publicity tour of the United States in late 1897, during which he impressed a New York Times reporter as being somewhat like Rudolf Rassendyll: a well-dressed

Englishman with a hearty laugh, a soldierly attitude, a dry sense of humour, quiet, easy manners and an air of shrewdness.
