

Positive Discipline: 40 activities to encourage positive behavior and beginning social interactions

Positive Discipline is an activity based, effective approach to inculcating the right behaviors in your children right from early childhood. Research has shown that disciplinary interventions during childhood often have a profound impact on the type of individual your child grows to be. But discipline does not always mean taking corrective action. Parents who invest time in reinforcing positive behavior through positive disciplining activities are more likely to nurture children who have an inherent understanding of right and wrong. At KidMastermind, we know the challenges faced by busy parents. That's why Positive Discipline gives you forty activities specifically targeted at busy parents looking to encourage positive behavior in their child in the short time they have. The activities described in Positive Behavior are easy to execute, make use of common articles found in your home and are developed by childhood experts with a collective experience of over 55 years in childhood education. The KidMastermind University for Parents is a treasure trove of activities and opportunities for busy parents to provide and enriching childhood for their children.

About KidMastermind: KidMastermind is an educational environment that provides parents with the best tools for the development of their child. Our goal is to make educational games between parents and children as popular as the morning jog. Right from personalized curriculum for parents to engaging games for children, KidMastermind provides the very best of learning and development for children of various ages.
