

10 Things I Told My Kids About Trayvon Martin and George Zimmerman

What did I tell my kids about the Trayvon Martin and George Zimmerman encounter, the acquittal, discussions of the Stand Your Ground Law and Racial Profiling? I suspect that all good parents struggled with this question. Unfortunately, my first conversation with my two 16 year old step twins Jordan and Dante didnt go so well, as I wasnt clear in my own mind what I thought or felt. My purpose in writing this book, at first, was to write my thoughts down for my two boys. I then realized that many people out there have the same questions and desires for their children. That is, to provide clarity on their thoughts and feelings about Trayvon Martin and George Zimmerman, and to provide solid advice on the lessons that should be learned and carried forward. You will most likely not agree with all of my conclusions, and thats ok. My hope is that this book can be a starting point to help you process all that has happened as well as the discussions on race, self-defense, the Stand your Ground Law, and Racial Profiling. Then, I hope you can discuss your thoughts and feelings on these topics with your own children in a clear and easy to understand way. I dont think this story will end with the gavel sounding at George Zimmermans acquittal. Therefore, if you havent already done so, I encourage all parents out there, regardless of race, ethnicity and location around the world, to organize your thoughts and teach your children through this situation.
